Project Description: The main objective of any cancer survivors parks is to reach as many people as possible with the message "you can survive cancer." Located at the intersection of Dale Mabry and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard, Richard and Annette Bloch Cancer Survivors Park will reach tens of thousands of people each day with this simple message. But beyond its message to the adjacent motorist, the plaza is also designed to provide information, education, hope and enjoyment to those who visit or traverse the park.

Richard and Annette Bloch Cancer Survivors Park is designed to help us understand Cancer and identify our fears, take action to confront those fears head on, and then discover the reward of celebrating every precious day lives. These poignant themes are represented through the three main components of the of our project: Understanding Cancer, the Road to Recovery, and Life Celebration.
